Strathroy Age Dispatch, May 12, 1904 page 8:

AN OLD RESIDENT

Of Adelaide Village, Mrs. Rachel Whitlock, of Forest, Passes Over the Mysterious Line

The death took place in Forest on April 27th, of Rachel Whitlock, relict of the late John Whitlock, of Adelaide Village, in the 89th year of her age. Deceased was born in Camden township, Lennox Co., in the year 1816 and was the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conaway. She was married to Mr. Whitlock at Clark's Mills, near Kingston, and was the mother of 13 children, only four of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock lived for a while at Napanee and then came west to Strathroy, settling here when the railroad was being built, and for a couple of years boarding upwards of one hundred men who were engaged in building the road. Later they moved out to Adelaide, where they were living when Mr. Whitlock died in August 1879. Soon after her husband's death Mrs. Whitlock moved to Forest, and has since resided there making her home the last eight years with her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Freele. Of the four children who grew up, one son and one daughter pre-deceased their mother, viz. Gregory, who was drowned at Napanee, and Mrs. Frye, who died in Wisconsin. The two surviving are Mrs. Freele, of Forest, and Wm. Whitlock of Petrolia. She is also survived by a number of grandchildren and great grandchildren. Deceased was a strong, vigorous woman and even after passing the allotted "three score and ten years" was remarkably well and active, but gradually old age began to tell upon her and as year by year went by she naturally became weaker, though always able to go about the house and a week previous to her death came down stairs. Her relatives had but a few hours' warning of approaching death, as she peacefully slept away. She was a member of the Methodist church and died as she had lived a consistent Christian. In her relations as wife and mother she was loving and faithful, a true help-mate to her husband. The funeral took place on Friday morning, April 29. After a short service at Mr. Freele's home, conducted by Rev. J.E. Ford, the remains were taken to Adelaide cemetery for interment. The bearers were six members of her church, viz.: Daniel and Davif Dunham, W. Gillis, G. Stewart, H. Baron and G. Proctor. At Adelaide six grandsons performed the sad duty. A memorial service was held in the Forest Methodist church on the following Sunday evening also conducted by her pastor, Mr. Ford.
