

RS141 A2/1 VITAL STATISTICS: COUNTY BIRTH REGISTERS
INDEX TO ALL CHILDREN, FATHERS AND MOTHERS
1801--1899

INTRODUCTION TO THE INDEX

Background:

New Brunswick was over 100 years old when the first legislation was passed requiring the civil registration of births and deaths: An Act to Provide for the Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages (50 Victoria, Ch.V) was passed on April 5, 1887. The registration of marriages had been required since 1812, but such registration was repealed and reconstituted in the 1887 Act which came into force on January 1, 1888. Administratively, the Provincial Secretary was denoted as Registrar General of Vital Statistics and Division Registrars were established in the Registration Divisions, which were defined as "each county and the City and County of Saint John".

The system for the registration was revamped in 1920 when Vital Statistics was brought under the newly created Department of Health. At that time, all registers created between 1888 and 1919 were to be forwarded to the Registrar of Vital Statistics. Some Deputy Registrars kept and continued to use the registers, but most complied. Thus, the registers created were transferred to Vital Statistics in Fredericton which transferred them to the Archives in 1991 and 1992.

Birth Registers Described:

The registers which are designated at the Provincial Archives as "RS141 A2/1 County of Births" are those which were created the 1887 legislation discussed above. the registers contain the name of the date of birth, place of birth, father's occupation, mother's name, informant's name and address, name of county of registration, registration number. Generally child, sex, father's name, mother's maiden name, accoucheur, date, and registration number. However, not all registers were filled in with the same degree of thoroughness: some have less information than the Act required and some have more. The data elements underlined above were transcribed and included in the computerized Index.

Sadly, not all of the registers have been located. Missing are the following:

- Westmorland County 1888-1919: (undoubtedly several registers because Moncton would be included)
- Sunbury County 1888-1919: (probably one register)
- Madawaska County 1888-1909: (one register)
- St. John County 1899-1905: (one register)

Whether these registers have been lost forever or are yet to be found, is not known. If any are located later, they will be added to A2/1 and indexed. Nonetheless, their absence now leaves a very noticeable gap in this Index.

Transcription and Indexing Project:

With the resources of both Vital Statistics Branch and the Provincial Archives, every pre-1900 birth in the registers was transcribed and used to build the Index which contains just over 78,100 birth registrations. Of course by indexing all children, all mothers, and all fathers, the size of the final index tripled, but so also did its research value. The entire Index totals more than 6200 pages and is available on microfilm.

Researchers may find it useful to know the number of births registered for each county:

County	total births	earliest birth
St. John	14,882	1813

Data Elements and Transcription Criteria:

The following are the elements added to the Index from the registers, with explanation of the transcription criteria used throughout the Project. The order below follows the order of the columns in the print-out:

ALL CHILDREN, FATHERS & MOTHERS

In this column, arranged alphabetically, are the names of everyone in the family unit relating to births before 1900. The name in this column is repeated in the column showing whether this person is the child, father, or mother. This approach was used to produce the Index to ensure that not only the children appear by surname, but that the parents also appear in the same index. It was deemed especially desirable to index the name of the mother, especially for records covering a time period when most indexes ignored the females.

Much effort was expended to ensure accuracy in transcribing the names of the child, mother and father, but researchers should note that there are many errors in the registers themselves, and that variant spellings should be checked as a matter of course. In many cases, only parts of names remain in those registers which have sustained much damage from over-use, but where those parts were legible, they have been transcribed, with dashes (---) indicating missing letters. Where no name (surname or given) exists, five dashes (-----) were used to indicate this fact. Where the transcriber has filled in a part of a name using other evidence (another entry in the register, for example), an asterisk (*) following the entry indicates this.

Although there are many obvious discrepancies in the registers, the temptation to edit was strictly resisted so that the information in the Index would totally mirror the information in the registers. In only a very few cases did the transcriber modify the spelling of a surname from that in the register. However, during transcription, obviously misspelled given names were often changed. For example, "Samual" would be corrected to "Samuel", or "Goerge" to "George", etc. But even here, great care was taken not to make a change on presumption only.

CHILD

This column includes the name of the child whose birth is being registered. In some cases, the given name of the child is not in the register; this is indicated by the five dashes (-----). In those cases where the surname of the child differs from both the surname of the father and the mother, it was indexed as it appeared. However, where there was unclarity in the surname, the child was indexed under both possibilities; knowing that although one possibility was incorrect, the other was probably accurate. This latter problem arose most often when it could not be determined if the second name of the child was the middle name or surname.

S

This indicates the sex of the child; Male or Female.

BIRTHDATE

This is the date of birth registered for the child. It is indicated in the style of "day-month-year". Dashes are used to indicate missing data elements. Most of the births recorded occurred in the latter part of the century, but a considerable number pre-date 1850. The earliest birth recorded is 1801. In about four cases, an error by the recorder indicates a nineteenth century birth when the date is actually out by 100 years: thus 1925 became 1825. In these cases, the incorrect date appears in the BIRTHDATE column but the correct date appears in parentheses in the CHILD column. These entries were left in this Index because they would not have been included in the post-1899 index on microfiche.

PLACE OF BIRTH

This is the place where the child was born. Of course, most of the places of birth were in the county where the register was created, but not always. There are many instances where births are registered in adjoining, even distant, counties. There are also births registered which occurred in the United States and overseas.

FATHER

This column contains the name of the father of the child.

MOTHER

This column was supposed to include the maiden name of mother of the child. However, many times the married name is given rather than the maiden name. In the cases where no surname appeared for the mother, dashes were used to indicate that fact. Note: in no case did the transcriber apply the surname of the father to the mother.

CO

This column contains the abbreviation of the county where the register was created. (It is not always the county of the place of birth). The codes used for the counties of New Brunswick are the first two letters, excepting St. John County where SJ is used. The list of abbreviations is included with the Book codes below.

BOOK

This is the code (from 1 to 15) applied to the birth registers by Vital Statistics. It is followed by a dash and a number indicating the number for the volume within the series of registers for that particular county. For example, Book "1-2" indicates St. John County (code 1), volume 2. The county (CO) abbreviations and Book codes are as follows:

Post-1899 Entries in the Registers:

The post-1899 births recorded in the registers were indexed by Vital Statistics in the 1980s and are on microfiche. They are not yet available for public inspection (1994).

PAGE+NUMBER

This column contains the page in the register on which the birth is recorded, plus the registration number. A number zero (#0) indicates that the births are not numbered on that particular page.

FILM #

This is the number of the microfilm at the Provincial Archives on which that birth appears. These microfilms are not yet available (1994) for research.
